TAKE IT OR LEAVE IT

Three things impressed me on my recent trip through the west. The ability and sincerity of the dancers was inspiring. They took to our contras like young ducks to water. Scores came up to me and said: "This is wonderful. We're really dancing to music" Indeed they were, and dancing well.

The farther west I went the less gaudy was the wearing apparel of the dancers. I saw far fancier shirts and skirts in Wisconsin and Minnesota than I did in Montana. Some of you eastern "cowboys" who have never been west of the Hudson should remember that.

Last, the twirling of partners with or without provocation seemed on the way out. This phase of square dancing is quite the rage here in the east, and will be for another year, but like all frills and flourishes will die a timely and well deserved death before long.

International dancing has not caught on in the West, due I believe to a lack of teacher interest. Instead, they do a great many of the newly composed "pattern dances."

Have no fear for the future of square dancing; this is still a dance loving country.

Sincerely

Ralph
What is all this hollering about new and difficult calls that everyone seems to be discussing? What are these fellows who are calling for square dancing anyway? A bunch of nitwits who have no knowledge of what square dancers like, and call a lot of figures that have no relation to square dancing?

New calls, hell! Anyone takes a call, turns it around, puts it to different music and lo and behold, he has originated a new call. He gets up before a crowd and hollers and brags that this is a brand new call that "I've just made up and it's the first time it has ever been called, yakety yak yak, etc."

In all of my experience in calling (I have not been at it too long—about 15 years) I have never really made up a new call. I've changed some, and I've put a couple of calls together which I thought improved them some, but new calls—NO.
I have read calls out of books; I've heard other callers use calls that I have never before heard and I have copied them and used 'em the way I wanted to; some of them I've murdered trying to call them; some I have given credit to the rightful owners, others I did not mention at all.

I have had other callers use calls that I know they got from me, and they'd look at me in hang-dog fashion while they were calling it. I have had other callers sit and write down the calls as I was calling them. When the dance was over I have gone over to them and explained the call to them to be sure they had it right. This always surprises some people and I get a big kick out of watching them while I'm explaining the call to them.

I have used calls that I knew were awful— the way I called them—but they sounded good when the other fellow called them. It was a case of my trying to call like somebody else and that's always a mistake.

All of the dancers like something different once in a while. They like the old calls but sometimes want them mixed up a little. You know—instead of calling "allemande left, grand right and left" every time, say, "allemande left and swing your own". There's a thousand ways to vary things, let's use some of them once in a while.

When we go to a strange place for a dance I try to find someone there that I know, and ask him what calls have been used at this place. I start in using the calls that they know if possible. As we go along with the program, I keep working in calls that are strange to them, and before the evening is over I have them dancing most everything. But—I explain the calls thoroughly and am sure that they understand the dance. There are few places that we go that we do not have a return engagement. Some of them I wouldn't go back to anyway—no matter how much they paid us.

If we aren't going to use something different once in a while the people are going to get so sick of the whole thing that they will die of stagnation. One of my former bosses, in conducting a funeral, always removed the casket from the hearse and then lined up the family in back of the casket and went into the church this way. I just couldn't see it. Why should the family stand outside and watch the casket being hauled out of the hearse. So I asked the boss about it. "Well," he told me, "that is the way my father always did it, so I am doing the same way." "Shucks," I said, "your father always used horses and wagons, and had a horse drawn hearse too, so why don't you do the same." We changed proceedings a short time after this.

It's not the different calls that bother the dancers; it's the too fast and too complicated figures that are lousing things up for everyone.

Minneapolis 14, Minn.
A howling blizzard swept over New York. Ceiling and visibility were both below zero if that is possible. Yet we were assured that the flight would be made, and were limosined out to Idlewild, taken by bus from the airport to the hangar, loaded onto the Northwest Airline Stratocruiser, and sat there from 10 a.m. til 4:30 p.m. when the storm lifted.

It wasn't as bad as it sounds. We were served a nice lunch; it was warm and dry; we got acquainted with our neighbors. An accordionist rescued his instrument from the baggage compartment and entertained us; there was a concert violinist with us on route to the coast and he also was not beneath playing for free.

Once in the air the trip to Minneapolis with a stop at Detroit, was as calm as sitting at home in your favorite armchair.

Lynn Woodward met us at the airport and drove us out to his home a few miles away. He and his wife own and operate "Woodward's Barn" a delightful place to square dance. It's busy every night of the week with many of the clubs renting it for their monthly or twice a month meetings and parties. Mrs. Woodward serves delicious country style suppers to all who want it and reserve space.

Our first contra dance institute was held next day, Sunday, March 2nd, in South St. Paul's new Junior High School. About 175 dancers participated, and to many it was their first look at contra dancing. An afternoon and evening institute gave them a good chance to find out if they were really going to like them.

Nice too, to meet many old friends here we first met at Mt. Horeb or Stockton. Especially nice of Jock Wesson to remember that I liked coffee and to bring me some several times during the day.

An all night train ride along with a three hour wait in Portage took us back to Madison, Wisconsin, next day for another afternoon and evening date in Turner Hall.

A bad snow storm kept the evening crowd down in numbers—about 100—and we sure hope that Rollie Endres and Johnny Fraase didn't lose too much on the venture.

Had a nice long talk with the John Gardners of Green Bay, people we've wanted to meet for some time. From them we learned what was a Minnesota Irishman and Milwaukee.

Back to St Paul the following afternoon where we picked up our reservation on the Great Northern to Great Falls, Montana.

For some undetermined reason we were sure we would find ten feet of snow and a thermometer at 30 below zero at Great Falls. Imagine our surprise then, to find it quite mild compared to the east.

The date here was more of the party type than an institute. But they did get some contras, and liked them and wanted more. They had never seen a contra before, much less dance one so this group was a fine one to judge whether or not westerners would really go for them. — They will.

Kenneth Fowell, recreation leader for the city of Great Falls, has done an excellent job here. We were told that one person in five is a square dancer, and we believe it.

An all day and part of the night ride on the train brought us to Spokane. Right through the Rockies and Glacier National Park; it was a gorgeous ride. We became so enthralled with the scenery that for hours we forgot to smoke.

In Spokane we stayed with the Thad Byrnes family, and led a three session institute—morning, afternoon and evening. Recreation leader, Red Henderson has a wonderful group of high school youngsters here, who call their club the Silver Spurs, and they are really top notch dancers.
Tacoma, Washington, next day, arriving there about noon of a Sunday after an all night pull man trip through the Cascades. For the first time on the trip we saw truly deep snow. Wet heavy snow clear to the cross trees of the telephone poles beside the tracks.

Bob Hagar and the Claude Walkers were at the station and for the next week we stayed at the Hagar's home.

A three night institute in Seattle was a big success. They insisted that there be no "one nighters" admitted. With the same group to work with for three sessions we really got somewhere with them. They honestly liked contras in Seattle and at the end of each one, yelled "more, more". So we had more.

Contra dancing is not entirely new here, for many of the dancers had been mildly exposed to them at various times. For such a large group it was one of the best institutes we've ever had. So many nice people here that it is wrong to mention anybody in particular, but we enjoyed the little party in Al Potter's cellar and the afternoon class at the University of Washington that Marlys Swenson teaches.

Stayed one night here with Larry Collins who simply had to hear all the square dance news and gossip of home town Boston and Revere Mass. Talked til 4:30 a.m.
Then a three day rest, except for calling for some of Bob Hagar's grade school kids several times.

Went dancing on a Saturday night in Tacoma, and many of you square dancers will not believe this, but we had a fine time and never did a square dance. All old time round dances.

In Oregon we had five dates: Salem, Eugene, Astoria, Portland, and Bend. Erma Weir of Oregon State College has certainly made this part of the west coast contra conscious. It was a joy to work with every group.

 Especially will we always remember the orchestra in Bend and the after class get together we had. Known as the "Corn Poppers" we got a tremendous kick out of listening to them. Must remember to send them some contra dances.

 Must not leave Oregon without mentioning the "Hayloft" dance hall of the Jack O'Donnell family. A beautiful place to dance. We had a Sunday afternoon party there just for those who liked to do contra. Got a chance to dance too, an unexpected pleasure. Erma Weir holds a week-long institute here in June and among other types of dances will teach some contras. She is the finest contra dance teacher west of the Mississippi.
San Francisco. For once we were warm in the place. The two days here saw cloudless skies and 80 degrees of sunshine. It was wonderful. The institute here was more of a party and Stockton camp reunion. After dancing together the past two summers at Folk Dance Camp we felt well enough acquainted to make up nonsense rhymes about them, and kid them along, all the time we were keeping the contras going.

Then to Modesto where the Boones gathered together a small but enthusiastic group eager to learn contras.

A two hour flight from Modesto brought us into Los Angeles in early evening. No institute here, just wanted to visit the Bob Osgoods and to look up a girlhood friend of mothers. A good thing too that we had no institute here, for we wouldn't have found time for one. Los Angeles lives at a fast pace; in comparison to it, New York is a quiet suburban town!

Saw a nice festival in Ojai on Sunday afternoon. Hundreds of people dancing outdoors, and as many more spectators. In the evening we saw the finest exhibition of high school aged youngsters we've ever seen anywhere—Levis and Laces—dancing to the calls of Ralph Maxheimer.

Next night, Bob Osgood corralled three sets of contra dancers via telephone and we had a nice kitchen junket at Sets in Order. We ended the evening with an "April Fool" contra.

Los Angeles to Atlanta in eight hours! Delta-American Airline does itself proud on this flight. Have you ever seen the sunrise at 17,000 feet? Thank heavens we woke up in time.

Atlanta is a beautiful city in early April. Flaming scarlet azaleas everywhere and white dogwood just coming into bloom.

Here, Fred and Mary Collette arranged the institute, held in the Fox Theatre Ballroom. A fine crowd attended and were enthusiastic contra dancers. Met many friends from the Dixie Folk and Square Dance Institute of the past two summers. Almost a reunion.

Atlanta to New York in two hours forty five minutes, nonstop flight of the Eastern Airlines— took half that time getting from Idle wild to the hotel. Then by train next morning to Fonda, where we were met by Mr & Mrs Duke Miller and driven to Gloversville.

The party in the latter city was the last of a series of lessons conducted during the winter by the Millers, and brought out an excellent crowd of good dancers.
Home by bus the next day, and after five weeks absence it sure was a nice place.

THINGS WE'LL REMEMBER

The hearty handshakes of old friends. Visiting with people on the trains and planes. Watching the snow swirl past the hangar at Idlewild. Listening to the airline personnel pronounce Idlewild: fill your mouth with hot potato and say "Ardawah"; that's what it sounds like.

The long wait in Portage and trying to sleep on the hard benches of the waiting room. Looking out the window at night while crossing North Dakota and watching the wind-blown snow drifting through the cold moonlight.

Marvelling at the dexterity of the pull-man waiters in the dining cars. The beauty and splendor of the Rockies in winter. The large numbers of game birds and animals seen from the window. The depth of snow through the Cascades. Mt Ranier and the Olympic mountains from Tacoma.

Walking on green grass early in March, and taking color movies of beside the road water falls, holly trees, and purple heather. The ride from Albany to San Francisco on the Shasta-Daylight. Big trees, millions of them. Thousands of ducks on Klamath Lake, Timberline Lodge and above Mount Shasta gleaming cold and white in in eternal snow.

Ducks on the game preserve in the middle of Bend, and the three Siamese cats who lived with our hosts at Bend. The ride up the coast to Astoria. The steaks at Great Falls. Watching our first golf match between Bob Hagar and Claude Walker. The sunshine in San Francisco.

The faces of the dancers as they finished their first contra without benefit of help from a caller. Their reaction when they realized that contras were fun to dance. Answering a would-be humorist at one of the parties: "Where is New Hampshire, I never heard of it."

"My friend, New Hampshire is a French settlement on an island off the coast of Georgia. We owned the town from then on. Two grade schools in Tacoma where fifth and sixth graders danced with the finesse and ability of adults.

The Paramount lot in Hollywood, where two of the guides were square dancers and one a caller. The ride to Ojai at ninety miles per hour with a new driver, and the ride home with the Paul Erfers after hours of carburetor trouble. Meeting Jean Destine, the great Haitian dancer.

The Farmers Market in Los Angeles. Talking with Randy Randolph as we browsed through Ed Kromers Folk Shop. Talking with Art and Meta Gibbs in their record shop in Portland. Discovering that Jack McKay was a lover of fine cheese and hoping to remember to send him a Vermont "Crowley cheese."

The ability of the dancers to "catch on" to a new (to them) dance form. The hospitality and friendliness of everyone. The beauty of Atlanta in the spring.
NEWS FROM
FOLK DANCE HOUSE

There will be a FOLK DANCE JAMBOREE on Friday May 23rd at the High School for Needle Trades. It was decided to have this May party in the gym at the High School instead of at Folk Dance House, in order to give everyone a chance to be together for one party, since accommodations at Folk Dance House are limited.

The June Party will be held at Folk Dance House, June 27th and will honor all the married couples who met their spouses at our folk dance sessions.

Folk Dance House will be open all summer. It'll be cool and comfortable. During July and August the sessions at the High School will discontinue, resuming there in September.

Country Dance Society Spring Festival, at Barnard College, Saturday, May 3rd.

Sunday, May 11, a special Mother's Day Program at Folk Dance House. We'll take a 16mm film so you'll have some record of the day. There'll be singing and dancing, 3:30-7 p.m.

Our square dance sessions sure received a jolt last month, when out of a clear sky we wound up with 6 out of town callers. Alec MacLeod was the guest caller. Herb Greggerson unexpectedly blew in and graciously called 5 dances. Mr Metcalf of Brockton, Mass. and Joe Blun-don of West Virginia also called. There's been a saying among old time callers that someday there'd be more callers than dancers and by golly it almost came true this one night.

Una Kennedy of Ireland spent one day with us, teaching and polishing up our Irish dances. May Gadd was another guest teacher for our English dance session.

Somehow or other we always start our folk singing with "Marching to Pretoria." So the other night, Dave Fromm asks, "Where is Pretoria?" We tell him, South Africa. "Oh", says he, "no wonder it's taking us so long to get there!"

There will be two teacher's courses conducted in the summer months at Folk Dance House. These will be full time 8 hour day courses with full training in the dances, the technique of teaching them, background material, etc. An opportunity to teach the regular classes will be provided. The dates are: July 14-26 and August 18-29. More details later.

Classes begin at 8 p.m. BUT Folk Dance
House is open 10 a.m. to 11 p.m.

ROSE ZIMMERMAN
For the first time the festival was held away from greater Boston; in Worcester at the spacious Memorial Auditorium. It proved to be a wonderful place for the event. Plenty of room for everything: dancing, exhibitions, craft exhibits. There was no lack of space.

We had the best craft exhibit we've ever seen at a festival anywhere. Every spectator was aware of it too, for it was in the main foyer, and you had to walk past it to get into the hall.

Dance exhibitions were of extremely high caliber; not a bad performance in any of the three sessions. In fact, the American squares and contras were the best we've had at any of the eight years of the New England Folk Festival; especially at the Friday night session.

Attendance, while far from flattering, was about as much as could be expected, as we were not blessed with fine weather, and the festival idea was new to Worcester. A sell-out house on Saturday night, was most inspiring and augured well for the success of future festivals, for we plan to visit other areas soon.

Maine was the only New England state not represented by a dance team. They gave us two outstanding young callers though, in Dick Castner of Portland and Dick Cole of Bryant Pond.

Groups exhibiting for the first time were Buttons and Bows, of Cumberland, R.I. Swedish Folk Dance Club of Worcester; Little Rhody Reelers of R.I.; Four H Promenaders of Gilford Conn.; Irish Junior Folk Dancers of Boston; Mousup Valley Grange, Conn; Stepney Country Dancers Conn; Fairlee School, Fairlee, Vt.

The Kitchen Junket Contra that the New Hampshire Dancers did on Saturday night must have opened the eyes of those who believe that contras are dull and monotonous. There's none so blind as those who won't see.

The Fairlee Vt. grammar school youngsters showed remarkable poise Saturday afternoon for just as they were ready to start their first number, something went bad with the record player and there were a few minutes of waiting while Al Smith ad libbed. Luckily, Ed Durlacher was in the audience, and as the kids were going to do his recording of "My Little Girl" he was more than willing to call it for them as the orchestra played. Then Ralph Page called his recording of "Honest John", with only Dick Best to furnish the music. This is no disparagement of Dick; he didn't know the special arrangement necessary for the dance, but could play chords on the guitar while Ralph sang the call.
It was the only time a recording was used in the whole festival, and it was only permitted this time in order to show other teachers what could be done with recorded music.

And speaking of music: this is the first time we've ever had any trouble with the Musicians Union. They blurred the executive board into believing we had to hire only members of the Worcester local to play for the general dancing. It happened while the union member of the board was away. We'd like to ask our dear sirs and brothers, how long has the Memorial Auditorium been on the forbidden list to any but members of the Worcester local?

However, the music for general dancing was adequate, albeit far from inspiring. It got progressively better as time went on; the men were most cooperative and did their best at all times to back up the caller.

A breakfast workshop at the Hotel Sheraton, preceded by a three-quarter of an hour coffee radio broadcast in the same hotel was some thing new this year. The broadcast was fun, and the coffee and coffee cake was good.

The workshop period needs a committee of its own. This year it was "given" to the Program Committee, which had its hands more than full anyway without the added attraction. Eleven leaders were asked to tell in what way they were trying to make square dancing better. It proved an interesting and informative session and will be tried again next year.
At the annual meeting of the New England Folk Festival Association the following new officers were announced: vice presidents, Herb Warren, Al Smith; treasurer, John Kenyon; directors, Elmore Ashman, Alice Dudley, Al Brundage, Axel Spongberg, Mal Hayden.

Voting membership in the New England Folk Festival Association is but $1.00 per calendar year. Do you belong? Mailing address is: Room 508, 140 Clarendon St. Boston 16, Mass.

REPORT FROM THE CAPE

Members of the Cape Cod Square and Folk Dance Association enjoyed an evening dancing to the calls of Howard Hogue of East Bridgewater, Mass. Feb. 26th at their regular monthly social night.

The March Social night was held at the Barnstable Women's Club and featured Charley Baldwin, Norwell, Mass. as the caller for the night. A pot-luck supper was served before the dance.

Classes in square, contra, and folk dancing were conducted by Ted Sannella, Revere, Mass. for members of the Association at Lyceum Hall, Yarmouthport, March 12 and 26.

Membership in the Association is now closed for the season at 250 members.

Dick Anderson has been making a series of visits to Martha's Vineyard on the first Monday of each month. Classes for youngsters in the afternoon, teen-agers in early evening and adults the latter part of each program.

This series of classes is being sponsored by the Duke's County Extension Service and it is planned to bring the series to a close in early May with a Junior Festival for the combined groups. Over 150 persons have been registered in the classes, and with the help of local leaders who conduct sessions between the monthly visits, Mr. Anderson has noticed a marked improvement in their style of dancing.

As a result of the visits, Mr. Anderson has formed a deep respect and admiration for the Island people. They are a proud lot, and altho they regret having you leave their Island, they would not encourage your permanent residence. That is something you have to feel you want to do.

It is interesting to note that after the boat leaves the Island in the early morning and there is no further contact with the Mainland, the Islanders settle down to their daily routine of living with a certain complacency that does not lend itself to loneliness but rather the opposite. They love their Island and its separation from many of the modern conveniences of the Mainland. They feel sorry for the unfortunates who have to return to the Mainland, and very rarely visit the Mainland themselves, except when absolutely necessary.

One does not get to know them easily and maybe some would have no desire to do so for they are not over friendly, nor do they try to impress you with their likes and dislikes. They have a language of their own that is not spoken, and it is not easy for an outsider to be considered one of them.

During a recent visit after a severe snow storm, the local paper printed a forecast of another storm approaching. The local comment of the natives predicted the precipitation would fall in the form of hot water as a special favor to the Islanders in helping to remove the previous snow.

Fifteen sets danced at Eastham Town Hall Saturday, April 5th to the calls of Jay Schofield and the music of Carl Lund's Promenaders. This series of dances, sponsored by the Eastham Athletic Association, have been held during the winter, the first Saturday of each month and have just about reached the point of becoming well established. Plans for continuing the dances through the summer are being considered.

Members of the beginner's class, sponsored by the CGSAFDA held a graduation party at Sear's Memorial Hall, East Dennis, April 29th to mark the close of the series of eight classes. Certificates of attendance were awarded members and a full evening of dancing was enjoyed with the calling being supplied by Dick Anderson, of Hyannis.

Because of a crowded calendar, the monthly social night of the CCSAFDA was changed from April 23th to May 5th at Eastham Town Hall with Dick Keith of W. Bridgewater as the featured guest caller. It was decided to hold this party on the Lower Cape in order to oblige the Lower Cape members who have had to travel long distances during the past winter in order to attend the association affairs.

The program of the CCSAFDA for May will include a Grand Ball, the time and place to be announced later. This affair will mark the close of the association's activities for the season and members will be allowed to bring guests. It is hoped that space will permit the extending of invitations to other square dance clubs and organizations in the near vicinity. Music will be supplied by Mel Von and Dick Anderson will head the list of callers.

Dick Anderson has been engaged by the Recreation & Parks Department of the City of Richmond, Virginia, for the week of May 19th to 24th. The week's program will include two leader's workshop periods on New England dancing, several public school assemblies, a night with a square dance club and two public dances sponsored by "Thalhimer's", a local department store. Enroute to Richmond, Mr. Anderson will conduct a dance for members of the First Unitarian Church in Philadelphia, Pa. May 17th.

Jay Schofield of Eastham will replace Dick Anderson on all local dates during this period.
CORN CRISPS

This recipe has been with a Virginia family since 1715, friends of Robin White, Atlanta Georgia, who passed it on to Mary Collette, who in turn gave it to NORTHERN JUNKET, after the editor had eaten his weight in them.

7/8 cup water ground corn meal
1 cup boiling water
3 tablespoons butter
1/2 teaspoon salt

Pour boiling water over other ingredients and stir until smooth. Pour mixture on greased cookie sheet and spread very thin.

Cook in oven for 10 minutes (350), remove, cut into squares, sprinkle with salt and return to oven to continue baking 50 minutes.

When making bread and it is ready for the tins, pinch off small pieces and cook them on a griddle or spider the same as biscuits. We call them "flops" and served with maple syrup.
are a real treat.
