PRESIDENT SPEAKS AT HUGE CONVO

Condensed Second Term Discussed By Student Bodies

Tentative plans for an abbreviated and condensed second semester to provide for an early closing of the academic year early in May with commencement on or about May 10 were drawn up by Dr. Everett B. Sackett in consultation with the Student Council and Women's Student Government at an emergency meeting Wednesday afternoon. Although plans are in the embryonic stage, subject to the approval of the university faculty members or Senate and the trustees, it is view of the present international situation and the state of war which ex-

Reduction of the draft age limits to include boys of 19 male students and those in the advanced R.O.T.C. course may also be subject to a premature call by the War rural areas and those specializing in agriculture will also be needed for farm work early in the spring because of the demands for more food products both

An exhibit of student photography has for some days been in the reading room of the library.

The collection is readily seen to be one of smooth mechanical processes. The photographs are all perfectly centered and balanced according to the mechanics of photography as taught by technicians. In some of the pictures there is no life; that is to say they are still life, not action photographs. In some is an attempt at pseudo-modern angles and subjects. "Design for living" by Earl Krauzer is an example of this 37 and later attended the Atlanta trend. "From Start to Finish" is also Southern Dental College in 1940, was Operator" by Howard Steele.

Merry Christmas

To all of you, from all of us on THE NEW HAMPSHIRE, a very happy holiday season. May the coming year find each of us doing our job to the best of our ability in our university here.

To give news of your activities, as you want it, has been and will be, the policy of the entire staff. We look forward to your support and enthusiasm in the year ahead.

Christmas in the World Today

Everywhere, everywhere, Christmas tonight! Christmas in lands of the fir tree and pine, Christmas in lands of the palm-tree and vine; Ciristmas where snow-peaks stand solemn and white, Christmas where corn-fields lie sunny and bright

from "A Christmas Carol" by Phillips Brooks

Unless we are careful, there may be a tendency to forget or abandon the traditional Christmas watchword of "Peace on earth, good will toward men' this year, in view of the present world crisis. Although the blossoming of the real holiday spirit may suffer a blight under an almost universial cloud of uncertainty and strife, there are still many comforting thoughts which can be derived from the commemoration of one of the most significant occurences in the world's history.

No tank or gun or battleship or airplane, no man or army or nation, no law or pact or alliance or philosophy of government comes any where near possessing the power and influence of the Christmas spirit. Intangible though it may seem, this spirit permeates the entire world. It is one of the constants which has weathered all the storms of civilization since its establishment nearly two thousand years ago. It is a mark of Christianity known and revered throughout the civilized world.

We must go beneath the surface this year and analize the real and beautiful message of Christmas; a message of reassurance, of hope and of peace. Yes, a peace of mind, at least, and perhaps in a few years a peace between warring nations.

The carols, and gifts and bright lights must take on a more real meaning this year. They must be used in a more sincere manner, and they can be used to brighten the hearts and souls of men. By singing the traditional songs louder and more often and by thinking about the things that the songs stand for, we can exert a stronger and more encouraging

It will be Christmas everywhere. In nations at peace and in nations at war. In nations where there is freedom to enjoy the joy that Christmas brings and in nations where ruthless dictators are attempting to crush the faith and hope manifested by Christmas. In war zones and in quiet homes it will be Christmas. Some men will be forced to fight equipment in the basement of the cruelly and bitterly on the birthday of the Prince of Peace, scarcely having time to realize what day it is.

But Christmas will survive. It will go on after the quarrels and differences of the present generations have long since been forgotten. There is no need to worry about the loss of the Christmas spirit. The thing for us to do now is to carry on with our usual festivities, ever mindful, however, of those who are unable to enjoy their Christmas as they would like to.

The spirit is contageous. Let's get a hold of it and by partaking of it in a more sincere and genuine way do our best to spread it over a world which needs a new life and a new hope. By doing this we will not only reasure ourselves and others, but we will learn the real meaning of the occasion and thereby enjoy it all the more.

There'll always be a Christmas!

COACH COWELL

William Harold Cowell was born in ynn, Massachusetts, on July 28, 1889. He died in Dove, New Hampshire, on August 28, 1940.

Until he was eighteen years of age Hill lived in Lynn. His father was a young New England banker who saw pportunities in the West, and in 1907 he family moved to Clyde, Kansas there Bill attended the Clyde High School before entering college.

As a college student Bill was poamer, and attended the Universities of Pittsburgh, Kansas and Illinois, representing all three in athletics.

In 1914 he was appointed Assistant Athletic Instructor of Hankell Institute in Lawrence, Kansas. The following year he was appointed Professor and Athletic Director at the University of New Hampshire, where he served until

Bill came from rugged stock. His randfather was a New England sea captain, and Bill was quite proud of the explaits of his mather's father, who sailed the seven eas on three different ships, paintings of which Bill had in

Strictly Disciplinarian

As a coach, he was a strict disciplinarian, but tempered his teaching with patience and a kindly persuasiveness which endeared him to scores of his football candidates. He believed in offensive football, and perhaps his greatest satisfactions came with the victory of New Hampshire over Army in 1921, and the upset triumph over a heavily favored Holy Cross College team, led by Dutch Connor. He retired from active football coaching in 1939.

Cowell was President of the American Football Coaches Association in 1927, and became Secretary in 1928, a position he held until his death.

He also served on the National Collegiate Track and Field Committee, and on the N.C.A.A. Boxing Com-

Congenial Colleague

Those of us who were fortunate be associated with him in athletics re member Bill as a congenial and de pendable colleague. He was respecte and admired by all of us, and his cor tribution to the University of New Hampshire was a real one. When h arrived in 1915 the College Presid met him at the railroad station as told him he would find all the athle Envestigation nothing but a few uniforms crumpl nto a burlup bag. Bill lived to see of of the finest athletic plants in the coun ry in Durham, New Hampshire, wit the Beautiful Lewis Stadium, acres of ractice fields, and a huge new field house with modern equipment.

Never Roamed

Although he received tempting offers to go elsewhere, Bill never roamed from New Hampshire. He went there to do a job, and characteristically, he never felt that he had finished the job. Besides, Bill loved New England. He collected many specimens of nature, and few of us will forget the skeleton of a double-headed rattlesnake which Bill had in his cabin, nor his thrilling description of how he caught it. He fished from Alaska to Labrador, and he had one of the finest collections of flies in the country, most of which he made himself.

For his contribution to the discussion of the New England Conference on Athletics, we are most grateful, and we record with appreciation this tribute to a colleague whom we loved and respected.

As witnessed in the The New Hampshire, it seems that Mr. Dent's conicism does not pertain to the musical field.

Having attended the Messiah for the two years of its presentation at the probably replace the present Student University of New Hampshire, may we say that, in our opinion, this year's of the Richmond Rotel in North both in excellence of execution and in Adams, Mass., the Greens met at this the spirit of all these taking part.

May we compliment Paul Cattabrigga for rendering his part in such a way as to add color to an already excellent performance.

If the sentiment recently expressed in this paper was that of the entire student body, we would feel it necessary to apologize to Handel for the useless waste of his work on the campus.

A. I. C. Inspired

An inspired American International team took the floor in the last stanza and combined accurate side-shots with quick passing to easily outscore New Hampshire 26-15. Jaczek, who had been ineffective in scoring in the first half suddenly unleased a spectacular scoring spree to give his team the lead, and then Kuczynski, International center, aided his cause by netting eight Dick McDermott, Rolly Stroyman, points in the last six minutes. Kuczynski registered ten points in the contest. being only one tally behind Monica and Jaczek. International was ahead 38-30 with three minutes left to play and finally became victor by a 42-32 margin.

Hal Monica was forced to leave the game with but one minute left in the partment. He served as a line coach the tussle because of too many fouls and at two seasons and has been engaged Bill Kolinsky went out on fouls with appriximately half a minute remaining to be played.

Harold Hall played his customary fast game, scoring seven points, while tall Bob Wheeler piled up six points for New Hampshire's cause. Bill Kolinsky was outstanding at his center position, netting four tallies.

Wildcats Inaccurate

New Hampshire's main fault was its inability to fire accurate aerials in the clutch. Everyone of the baskettossers at some time or another failed to net the ball when the score was necessary. This isn't discouraging, however, since three of the starters began their first intercollegiate game and with a little experience will eventually gain sharper eyes and thus score more points. The Wildcats lost their first game last year but came back strong to enjoy a successful season thereafter. New Hampshire plays Northeastern here on January 7 in the next game.

The two thousand students and faculty members who attended this convo were especially interested in hearing more about the tentative plan for shortening the second semester and concerning this vital question the President stated that activities should be carried on as they have been as nothing definite will be decided until the meeting of the Association of American Colleges in Baltimore, Md., on January 2.

Must Win a Peace

Dr. Engelhardt emphasized that though America is now facing the problems of war it must also attempt to solve the problems of the peace which will follow. "We must win a peace and it is not too early to determine what those specific problems will be and also what their solutions will entail.

The Convocation was climaxed by three excellently performed numbers by the Choir. Christensen's "Christmas Lullaby" was especially well done, with Louise Edson singing the solo soprano part. The musical portion of the program was ended by the singing of Christmas carols and Alma Mater by the entire audience.

According to present arrangements which would save approximately four and one half weeks from the second semester and perhaps an additional two weeks gained by reconvening school two weeks later next fall, the summer recess would be increased from 15 to 22 weeks. Consideration of a summer semester or new arrangements for next fall has not been undertaken and no definite announcements along these lines will be made until the emergency situation of the second semester has been met.

Alternatives Presented

While there were several alternatives presented to the student governing bodies at their meeting by Dr. Sackett, the simplest and the one which was considered the most satisfactory by the group called for complete elimination of both first and second semester examination periods. Time would also be saved by the proposed reduction of the spring vacation from one week to two days. Present plans call for longer assignments in all classes, tutorial periods conducted by professors at least one evening in each week, and perhaps a laboratory make-up period on Saturday afternoons.

Definite Plan Later

Definite arrangements will be released by the administration to the student body immediately after the close of the Christmas vacation early in January. Substituted for the final examination period will be hour exams in all courses during the last one or two weeks of the semester, staged so that no student will be forced to take several tests in a short time.

Encourages Students in Colleges to Get as Much Education as Possible

In an address delivered by President Kenneth C. M. Sills of Bowdoin College before the Faculty Dinner held last Monday night an emphatic plea was made to keep the draft age at 21 and to encourage college students to get as much formal education as possible before they enter the service.

Terming all efforts toward these goals as "high patriotic services", President Sills deplored a situation that in a short time might find the nation with no men available who had received a college education.

"It is important, I think, to emphasize this point for too many people still regard a college education as a distinct privilege rather than as the corating the fraternity room have preparation for service. We all agree that in national emergencies the country has a right to call on every citizen to take up arms if need be; but until cruise to the north country last the need is far more acute we must try to educate the rising generation to the importance of college education."

Longer Hours

The teaching profession, like labor, must be ready to accept longer working nours during this war and at the same time acept a curtailment of many educational facilities that have in the past seemed essential, President Sills noted.

"If we believe, as many of us do, that we have to lengthen the working week of labor, we should be ready to take on additional loads ourselves and to forego some of the precious provisions that in normal times rightly limit the number of teaching hours. It may be advisable to break down some of the rigid departmental lines and go back to the earlier days of American education when professors were not limited to highly specialized courses.

"We should, however, see to it that men engaged primarily in scientific research are allowed to go on with their work. As we all know, war is highly scientific business; American science will have to match and beat the best scientific minds and the best scientific training in enemy countries."

AIR RAID PRECAUTIONS

RAID RULES

- 1. The signal for an air raid is an extended series of short blasts on the fire whistle. (Public announcement will be made if this is changed.)
- 2. When the alarm is given, dress in warm clothes and go to a previously determined place. When you go to bed at night, have an outfit of warm clothes handy to your bed.
- 3. Be sure someone is watching your premises for fire bombs, but otherwise
- 4. If a raid is expected, have sand, shovel, and pails on hand. Draw water in bathtub and other large receptacles for fire-fighting and emergency water supply.
- 5. Do not use the telephone during a raid except in extreme emergency. It is the duty of your warden to report damage and call help.

BLACKOUT RULES

- 1. Roller curtains are useful as blackout material only if painted with a special
- 2. Outside shutters are good, but the weatherside must be covered with black oil cloth, overlapping three inches.
- 3. One of the best blackout devices is a wallboard shutter made to fit into the inside of the window frame and edged with felt.
- 4. Heavy cloth curtains sometimes are effective.
- 5. If you have a fireplace, fit a metal shelf over the chimney to hide the glow.
- 6. Close and lock doors of all rooms not blacked out.
- 7. Remove all outside electric bulbs.
- Blackout barns, garages, and sheds in same manner as house.
- When your blackout screens are ready, go outside to see there are no leaks.
- 10. Open outside doors only when no light will shine through them.
- Use no flashlights or lanterns outside.
- 12. Don't drive an automobile during a blackout. Don't smoke outside.

If you have any questions, ask your warden. He is your friend. Give him all the help you can.
