meeting at Dr. Carroll Towle's house on Monday, December 11, was devoted to the reading of Christmas selections. Dr. Towle read several seventeenth century ballads, stories of early American celebrations, and two modern short stories depicting a desolate Christmas Eve of a soldier and a sailor, and showing a Christmas day in the London slums. Included in these works were two chapters from Robert Coffin's delightful work, "Christmas in Maine," the first dealing with the actual celebration of the day and the second with the food aspect. This latter chapter left everyone ready to appreciate fully the drinks and cookies served at the close of the meeting.

This meeting was in contrast to the usual procedure, when selections are read mainly from "The New Yorker," "Life" and the "Saturday Review of Literature." Discussions are held based on the ma terial read, giving each person an opportunity to express his opinions on current events and widen his knowledge by hear-

Christmas - 1944

Centuries ago in a world of peace, the God-man was born a child in Bethlehem. Today, some nineteen hundred years after that event, man are: Luciette Roy, Virginia Worster, is working twenty-four hours a day in factories and laboratories, man is dying horrible deaths on sea and on land in an effort to exterminate his fellow man.

Still, Americans this Christmas have cause for joy in the midst of their sorrow. For on the cold sea waves of the North Atlantic, in the freezing Roer Valley, and in the shadowy jungles of the Phillipines, American warriors on this Christmas Eve will ease the grip on their guns, and for the briefest moment, American flyers will stop searching the skies for Jap Zeros. They will pause. They will pause and think of the ghastliness, the ugliness and the hatred of war. But, they will also think of the noble deeds prompted by wars. They will realize that all the bloodshed, all the suffering and the sacrifice, is necessary if justice and mercy are to live again in the hearts of men.

They will pray as we know they do and have prayed. They will ask the Baby who is God at Bethlehem to give them the courage to endure in their rightful battle for good, for those things Americans call freedom, justice and the right to live in liberty. They will pray for their enemies as well as for themselves. They will ask the Child of Bethlehem to lead the hearts of men once more to love, to kindness and to brotherhood. And they will pray—for peace.

Armies with the spirit of America can never lose a battle, because on this Chirstmas Eve, they trust in the Christ Child to lead them to a rightful and just victory over the enemies of their nation. Our warriors will never be deceived in their trust.

Farewell

With the advent of such modern inventions as panzer divisions and motorized warfare, we have come to realize that more than a few months of training and a gun are necessary before a soldier can be sent to the front. Warfare in our time calls for a high degree of specialization. Consequently, it is extremely important that the army of our country consist of a great number of highly skilled men who are completely versed in science and mechanics. Only thus can a war be fought to a successful and victorious conclusion.

Further, many of our soldiers will be needed for the army of occupation. These men will require a thorough knowledge of such subjects as sociology, psychology, languages, and the history and geography of the particular countries involved.

We have had on campus a detachment of soldiers undergoing such training. During their stay here they have become a part of our college life, and we have thought of them as fellow students. Their uniforms were no barrier to fellowship and friendship.

Now that they are leaving, we shall miss them. It is, therefore, with sincerity and friendship that we bid them farewell and good luck.

NEW CAMERA "SHOOTS" FLYING PROJECTILES

WHEN Army ballistics experts needed to photograph speeding rockets, scientists at Bell Telephone Laboratories built the special "ribbon-frame" camera. Their experience came from making high speed cameras to study tiny movements in telephone equipment parts.

The new camera gets its name from the narrow slot that exposes a ribbon of film at a speed of one tenthousandth of a second. These "stills," taken on ordinary film, show a fast flying P-47 firing its underwing rocket.

This is an example of the many ways Bell System research is helping to provide better weapons, better equipment for war and peacetime telephone service.

The door of room 311, Thompson Hall, is always open to the interested spectator, for this is the home of the UNH Radio Service, directed by Prof. Edmund A. Cortez. The student wishing to see a broadcasting studio "on the air" for the first time may be sadly disappointed, however, for there is little to see through the glass partition—just two persons sitting in a large room at a circular table, one of whom is speaking into the microphone before him.

Once again we have fought a wa sincerely believing that its successful conclusion would bring lasting peace cast from UNH studio over Station and the restoration of liberty and freedom. We have made great and momentous plans for the post-war world Book Review prepared by members of and our allies are bound to us by all

But once more we have been duped. Once again American lives have been shed for the preservation of a system that has brought suffering and misery to a large portion of the world. That system is that of British imperialism.

No one who sincerely believes in the right of self-determination of all peoples can sanction the use of the British army to enslave the peoples of Belgium, Italy, and Greece. Nor can any firm believer in human freedom sup port the arrogant, impudent attitude of Churchill and Eden. British imperialism is a vile, inhuman, undemocratic system. As long as it exists freedom and liberty will be unknown-and wars will flourish.

The British have betrayed not only our trust but the trust of those napresented during the Writers' Conference tions who suffered under the Nazi in which well-known American authors tyranny. And there is little doubt as Robert Tristram Coffin, Prof. John that the British endorse the opinion of Holmes, Rolfe Humphries and Walter Sir Wardlaw Milne who belittled American participation in the war by stating that America was not coming course do the announcing for these pletely in the war, and that England's contribution was the largest.

The British, as usual, have short and ungrateful memories. They forget Lend-Lease which enabled them to hold out against Hitler; they forget 12:45; Book Review-Wednesday, 12:30; the American invasion of North Africa; they forget that American troops tremendously outnumbered the British dren's Book Review-Friday, 9:50 a.m.; forces in France; they forget our con-Home Program-Friday, 12:45, and 4-H tinuous industrial and commercial aid: they forget that Russia has lost more men and has made greater sacrifice than any other nation; they forget that England's armies ingloriously retreated from the Nazis in 1940; they forget their not so heroic loss of the supposedly impregnable base at Singa-

The positive declarations by Churchill and Eden leave no hope for a settlement. The only remaining course of action is for Russia and the United States to warn England that they will take direct and effective steps if Britain does not cease to interfere in Europe and if she does not abandon her intention to extend her domination over Europe. of the 1942 undefeated Wildcat Football team and former Football and Basketball star at Nassua High, has been chosen as a member of the North Team to participate in the North-South Charity Football game at Montgomery, Alabama, on New Year's Day. Rodis was a member of the Third Air Force Football team this past season, and it was for his fine gridiron activity with that outfit that he was chosen to play in this post-season Bowl game.

UNH Football Star

As a member of the 1942 squad, one of the best in Wildcat history, Nick was one of Chick Justice's shock troops, a group of freshman reserves who proved to be on a par with the older and more experienced players on the squad. Nick played both guard positions during the season, and although there was an abundance of good line material he saw action in the greater part of every game.

In addition to his football at the University, Nick is also remembered for the time when, on a trip to Norwich University, while the team was stopping off in Concord, he walked boldly in to the State House with a couple of the other members of the squad, into the Chief Executive office and said: "How do you do, Governor, My name is Nick Rodis.'

Rodis' choice as a member of the North Team is significant of the fact that many of our athletes here at New Hampshire, when they have the opportunity to get out into so called "big time" competition make just as good a showing as they did in our own league.

by Jack McGinn

At the present the athletic situation at Durham is relatively quiet. The Intramural League is the only activity that is going full swing and offering excitement to the sports minded fans.

But don't get discouraged friends, because after our long awaited Christmas vacation is over the Field House will be buzzing with activity as candidates for the Wildcats varsity get in shape. Coach Swasey has set the initial practice for January third, the day we return. Although the schedule for the team has not been completely arranged it has been decided that the contests will take place Tuesday and Saturdays with the first game being played on or around January sixteenth. Both these days seem convenient (at least to me) and it will certainly give the student body an ample chance to see the team in action. If the students show the same spirit during the season as they did during the football campaign these games should be well attended. It is understood that the Pepcats will also be in there cheering.

Another high spot in the University of New Hampshire's athletic functions will be the annual schoolboy basketball tournament which in all probability will be held in the latter part of February. Of course nothing definite has been said on this matter by the school authorities but the tourney was a success last year and if held this year its success should be unequaled. Well we'd better stop at this point before we dig to deep into the future and start discussing the 1945 baseball Life for G.I. units on campus has not been all work and no play. The dull routine of classes has been broken by social events sponsored at New Hampshire tures, and concerts. Other centers of attraction have been the swimming pool in summer and the skating rink in winter with the Field House in use for informal civilian-Army contests in baseball, basketball, and football. While at the university, an AST band was organized for interested men and became an appreciated contribution to football rallies and games. Recs sponsored by the USO and the tastes of college life found in the familiar haunts of the civilian students have also been satisfying favorites of these soldiers far from families and civilian activities.

On behalf of former and present units who have experienced hospitality and a completeness of educational opportunity friendship on campus, the ASTRP is

American colleges and universities, trusees, alumni, and undergraduates of the university in New Hampshire Hall, the new president definitely outlined his duties and objectives as an educator. Himself a young man, forty-one-yearold Dr. Stoke has an outlook toward the future, an outlook upon the problems which must be faced and solved by the young men and women of the postwar world. His extensive experience as an educator and as an administrator has given him a background to help define the policies needed by the young people whom the university teaches.

Meaning of Power

In his address, President Stoke clearly defined his meaning of power in its truest sense by saying: "The critical question whether we can produce people who will power will, as they materialize, tax every resources of knowledge and virtue," he continued. "The task of educators is clear. It is to show how an age of power can be taught to combine knowledge and virtue to give human life the freedom and the splendor that some have shown it can achieve. To this end we dedicate ourselves and this university."

Other highlights of the inuagural program were the educational greetings brought by President Ernest M. Hopkins of Dartmouth and Governor Robert O Blood's greetings from the state.

Greetings from Educationald World

In his greeting on behalf of the sister colleges of New Hampshire and Dartmouth, President Hopkins pointed out that the two institutions may represent in the future, even more than in the past, to the state beyond what it would be within the province of either one to offer

In speaking of their goals of education, Dr. Hopkins stated, "I have long believed it a valid assertion that political leadership would emerge more definitely from educational policies designed to cul tivate more intelligent use of the suffrage than from processes primarily designed to produce master minds. The effect of our educational effort should be, it seems to me, to equip men for roles of influence rather than towards cultivating an appetite for mastery. I see no escape from the conviction that the latter makes for Fascism, even as I believe the former makes for democracy.'

He continued by saying; "The responsibility for education's major obligation is to make possible a cumulative greatness in society without the development of present facilities were available in 1941 Many brilliant productions were staged by Professor Hennessey during this time. Grumpy, The Show-Off, Dear Brutus, The Dover Road, Outward Bound, Tovarich, You Can't Take It With You, Ladies in Retirement, One Sunday Afternoon, and Arsenic and Old Lace were but a few of the sixty-one productions.

Approximately five hundred different students participated more than once in these plays which were popular on campus and also in Concord, Manchester, Laconia, Franklin, Portsmouth, Nashua, > which civilization must inevitably wither and die. The dawn of intelligence in any man will demonstrate to him that he does not and cannot live to himself alone. Similarly, a curriculum of the cultural arts which ignores the educational significance of the industrial arts, even if it cannot teach them, or vice versa, is not true education. The ultimate truth to which we come if we travel far enough, regardless of the path by which we make our approach toward reality, is that knowledge is a unity."

Many in Procession

The inaugural ceremony was preceded by an academic procession in which fifteen college presidents and representatives from 35 other colleges and universities participated. The exercises were Emerson G. Hangen. Frank W. Randall, of Portsmouth, president of the Board of Trustees, delivered the presidential charge of office to Dr. Stoke.

Four honorary degrees were conferred, that of Doctor of Engineering to Robert A. Neal, vice-president of Westinghouse Electric, UNH, class of 1910; Doctor of Science to Charles L. Parsons internationally known chemist and secretary of the American Chemical Society; Doctor of Humane Letters to Louis de-Rochement, producer of Twentieth Century-Fox, and former director and producer of the March of Time; and Doctor of Laws to Andrew L. Felker, who is serving his eleventh term as Commission er of Agriculture of the State of New Hampshire. The ceremony was closed with a benediction by the Reverend J Desmond O'Connor.

A luncheon for the 250 official delegates and invited guests among the alumni and trustees, was held at noon in the University Commons and a tea and reception followed the inaugural ceremony

Pat Lincoln Chosen Vet's "Pin-up Girl"

At the annual Christmas dance, held ast Saturday evening in New Hampshire Hall, which was sponsored by the Student Veterans' Organization, Miss Patricia Lincoln '48, of Warwick, Massachusetts, was chosen from among the undergraduate student body to reign as the Veterans' "pin-up girl."

The dance was held in the interest of the 6th War Loan Drive and an enlarged photograph of Miss Lincoln was auctioned to the highest bidder by dance chairman, Daniel J. Colocathis. The sale of the photograph, coupled with a kiss from the "pin-up" girl, netted $40.00 in War Bonds and Stamps and was purchased by Robert Fraum. Danny Colokathis, the auctioneer, was introduced by the new president of the Veterans' Organization, Mike Coombs.

Dick Mascott and his band supplied the music and his new vocalist, Rosalie La-Mothe, of Alpha Xi Delta, made her debut before the UNH microphones. Brad Chase, '48, was the male vocalist. A large crowd enjoyed the music and Christmas festivities.

The picture of Miss Lincoln was taken by Mrs. Martha Sackett of the Visual Education department. Popular 'Pat" was garbed in a glamourous sequined evening gown and was indistinguishable from the much publicized 'Powers' models.

Plans are underway to organize Crash Unit as a special project of the Flight. In case Military or civilian aircraft should crash in this area a group of men and women skilled in skiing, first aid, outdoor life, etc. will be equipped and prepared to perform rescue activities as well as guard and protect Military equipment until such time as army authorities can take over. All those members who are interested in this phase of CAP activitiy and who are qualified, will be given an opportunity to participate. Any other such projects in which sufficient interest is shown will likewise be included in the program of the New Hampshire Flight.

NOTICE

There is a new collection of student pictures from Mrs. Sackett's photographic department above the card catalogue in the library. A new set will appear every two weeks.
