Town Report Contest Winners Announced

Results of the Municipal Report Contest for 1945 were announced here by Dr. Norman Alexander, chairman of the Bureau of Government Research at the University of New Hampshire. Divided into five classes, according to population, results are as follows: Class I (less than 500 people), First Place - Mason; Honorable Mention, Nottingham; Class II (500 to 1000 people), First Place - Loudon, Honorable Mention, Canterbury; Class III (1000 to 2500), First Place - Andover, Honorable Mention, Wilton; Class IV (2500 to 10,000 people), First Place - Wolfeboro, Honorable Mention, Lebanon; Class V (over 10,000 people), First Place, Concord, Honorable Mention, Keene.

Judges were Dr. C. L. Stephens, University of Rochester, Rochester, N. Y.; Mr. James E. Barlow, city manager of Portland, Me.; and Dr. John T. Holden, president of Nasson College, Springvale, Me.

Basis for the awards were made on the following considerations: attractive cover, organization chart, budget summary, balance sheet and financial statement, schedule of distribution of expenditures over a period of years, historical and statistical data about towns, graphic presentation of financial and other facts about the town, the achievements of the year, quality of material presented, and presentation of future plans for town or city.

Winners selected from the entrants in the New Hampshire town report contest will be entered in a New England competition sponsored by the Community Development Commission of the New England Council at their annual conference to be held in Boston on November 15 and 16.

Lt. Elwin Nesmith '35, Custodian of Army Wildcat Mascot in So. Pacific

A wildcat named Tuffy is helping to lighten the life of Lt. Elwin M. Nesmith '35, a member of the 81st Infantry "Wildcat" Division. In a recent letter to "Dad" Henderson, Lieutenant Nesmith said that having Tuffy as division mascot reminded him of his days at UNH when Butch the First was mascot.

To prove that "there were wildcats over here as well as in New Hampshire," Lieutenant Nesmith arranged to send a picture and a brief history of Tuffy to the Alumni Office.

Tuffy, a native of the Georgia swamps, was given to Maj. Gen. Paul J. Mueller, Wildcat Division commander, by the Governor of Georgia.

In order to take Tuffy overseas with the unit, General Mueller obtained special permission from the Secretary of War to waive the regulation which forbids that pets be taken overseas. Secretary Stimson consented after the General declared that the critter was too mean to be classified as a pet.

BEGINNERS' REC

There will be beginners' recs every Tuesday evening from 6:50 to 7:50 p.m. in New Hampshire Hall. These will be under the direction of Mrs. Hazel Rettig, and are intended for those who are beginners in dancing, or those who don't know too much about it and want to learn.

Important!

The Student Veterans Organization will hold its first business meeting in Murkland Auditorium on Monday, October 8 at 7:00 p.m. The requirements for membership in the S.V.O. are an honorable discharge from a branch of the armed services, and the person must be a student at the University of New Hampshire. It is requested that all veterans attend this meeting because many important questions must be decided, and committees must be appointed to get the S.V.O. rolling along in full swing. There is a vacancy existing in one of the offices of the organization and this must be filled. Certain former practices and policies of the club should be changed because of the great increase in the number of veterans on campus.

The most important matter for discussion is the actual existence of the Student Veterans' Organization as an organization on campus.

Pres. Student Veterans Organization

UNH Alumnus Has Six Battle Awards

Veteran of 29 combat missions and wearer of the Purple Heart with one Oak Leaf Cluster, First Lt. George Bouras, of Newmarket, N. H., has plenty of stories to tell of his experiences while flying five miles above Hitler's Germany, as an aerial navigator.

Flying a 15-Air Force Liberator from bases in Italy, the young flyer officer won his first Purple Heart on a mission to the oil refineries of Odetal in German Silesia. In the target area, already clouded with flak puffs, German fighters joined the attack on the formations. A 20-millimeter shell scored a direct hit on Lt. Bouras' plane and a piece of shrapnel pierced his flying boots to lodge itself in his foot. His injuries were not serious and he was able to navigate the flak-riddled ship back to base.

On a mission to Kagran oil refinery at Vienna in March, Lt. Bouras received his second injury, indirectly from enemy action, but just as painful. Over the target, a burst of anti-aircraft fire shot away almost half of the plane's tailpiece. With extraordinary skill, the pilot managed to bring the plane back to Italy. Over the field, he radioed his control tower of the extent of the damages, and the tower advised the crew to bail out rather than attempt a landing. Lt. Bouras struck the ground in a rough spot and added a cluster to his Purple Heart by injuring his ankle.

Overseas from September to May, Lt. Bouras was also awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters and the theater ribbon with seven battle stars. Four of his missions were as squadron lead navigator.

In civilian life, Lt. Bouras attended the University of New Hampshire where he majored in chemistry. He was called to active duty in March 1943, and graduated with wings at the advanced navigation school at San Marcos, Texas.

Lea Halpren, Noted Ceramist, at UNH

Lea Halpren, noted ceramist from the Netherlands, will teach her craft to students at the University of New Hampshire, according to an announcement by President Harold W. Stoke.

Born and educated in the Netherlands, Miss Halpern was schooled in painting, modelling, and ceramics in Vienna, Berlin, and Holland, mastering such subjects as chemistry, physics, mineralogy, and metallurgy, as well as sculpture and color. Until 1940, when she came to New York to exhibit at the Netherland-America foundation, Miss Halpern lived in Amsterdam, where she had her own workshops and kilns.

She has held exhibitions in many parts of Europe, England, and the United States, recently at the Currier Gallery of Art in Manchester, N. H., and the Phillips Memorial Gallery, Washington, D. C. Her potteries have been acquired by the Museums of Amsterdam, the Hague, Dordrecht, the Victoria and Albert Museum of London, the Metropolitan Museum of New York, and in such private collections as H.R.H., the Crown Princess Juniana of the Netherlands.

Miss Halpern has been called one of the "greatest living workers and artists in ceramics, whose work has been compared to that of the great Chinese masters of the Ming and Sung dynasties." She is particularly well-known for her development of unusual glazes and delicate crackles.

AWS Holds Meeting. Pres. Reviews Aims

The Association of Women Students, with president Peg Tower presiding, held their first meeting of the 1945-1946 school year Monday, October 1, in Ballard Hall. The president reviewed for the benefit of the new members the aims and activities of the association. It was the opinion of the AWS that it would be beneficial if these aims and activities were made known to the entire student body.

AWS general aims are (1) to encourage active cooperation in the work of self-government among the students, and (2) to increase the coordination between the administration and the student body. The specific aims are more readily seen applicable. (1) To increase cooperation between the Men's Student Council and the Association of Women Students. (2) To see that quiet hours are enforced more effectively.

Besides these general and specific aims, that entail continuous work throughout the year, AWS has representation on the College Chest Fund, the Student Committee on Educational Policy, and the Social Committee of the Associated Organizations. There is also the annual dance sponsored jointly by the Men's Student Council and AWS. The newest activity added to this list is the sponsorship, with the Men's Student Council also, of the Student Lounge in the Commons' Trophy Room.

Gad, That Wasn't Bad Let's Bring 'em Back

Did the Durhamite of 1940 have a better life than the Durhamite of the present day? Before you make up your mind, you must remember that that was before Pearl Harbor — a whole year before. There were plenty of men on Campus then. Fraternities were full to capacity. There was a full sports program to provide something to yell for. And the stores down town blazed with light until after eleven o'clock. Furthermore you could get inside and feed yourself when the appetite called.

Football Rallies

There used to be huge rallies before every football game and the cold October nights were made gay with torchlight parades to celebrate victorious home-coming teams. Usually the buses carrying the teams stopped in front of Commons and there the whole student body would gather to welcome them home. The band would strike up with "Cheer Boys" and the streets would resound with the sound of the singing. Some of the more husky fellows would raise the star performers on their shoulders so that the crowd could see who they were shouting for by the glow of the torches. Then a parade would form and everyone in Durham, Dover, Newmarket, Exeter, and half a dozen more towns would know that the team was back.

Mayoralty Campaigns

Then there were the Mayoralty campaigns. These were for the purpose of electing a student mayor of Durham. They lasted a week and their effects lasted for months. Practically every fraternity on campus put up a candidate and we do mean put up. In true gubernatorial tradition the hopeful aspirants for the office went about electioneering. They kissed the babes on the streets, set up soap boxes on the corners, held parades, and besmirched their rivals through the medium of the press. We have on file here in the New Hampshire offices some campaign promises that would make the repeal of the eighteenth Amendment look sick. Such wild schemes as plans for a night club were even considered. One candidate said, "We need more night spots such as the 'Cotton Club' and speaking of the 'Cotton Club' reminds me of my years in the Southland, where I used to see the mummies out in the cotton fields picking up cotton, and the pappies in the 'Cotton Club' picking up mummies." Another candidate tried to combat this "radical" policy with the offer of free transportation from Durham to Reynaud's. This same fellow advocated starting classes at eleven o'clock and ending classes at twelve o'clock — of course no classes would be held on Fridays, Saturdays, or Mondays.

One candidate used to dress up in a morning coat and a high silk hat, perch himself on the rocks between Hood House and Commons and exhort the passers-by to vote for him. I believe that it could have been this same lad who advocated the prohibition of drinking water. He maintained "If water will rot the shingles on your roof, what will it do to your stomach?" Someone tried to find out if water would rot him. A hose was hitched to a tap at Kappa Sigma and a gush of water sent the proud silk hat sailing across the street to Prexie's lawn.

To climax this week of revelry a parade was held in which all candidates and their cohorts participated. This ended at New Hampshire Hall where each would-be mayor put on a show and a last-minute speech. Elections were held and the next morning Durham would have a new mayor.

Sadie Hawkin's Day

The girls got their innings in on Sadie Hawkin's Day. Sadie Hawkin's Day, now there is an idea that was thought up by an enterprising young lady that had her eye on the ball. The conventional customs are all right, but they originated under the assumption that every girl is a Carnival Queen which is not all together true. In fact this slight discrepancy makes a surprising amount of difference. Under the Sadie Hawkin's plan it's every man for himself and the Devil take the hindmost. It is a very far sighted plan indeed for a dance is held and the co-eds just exchange customs with the fellows. They do the inviting and pay all the bills. Here, too, they have an opportunity to try out some of their own ideas and also realize some of the difficulties encountered by the males under the usual customs. If you are "keepin' up wid de sco'e on the sco'e bo'de" you can take it from there.

And that's just a preview of a review. The characters on campus five years ago were really rugged characters who could take a load of excitement in their strides and still appear at their eight o'clocks on the morning after. We could go on for another column or two about the "good old days" but it's our rather fond hope that the days to come are going to put these past events in a deep dark shade. Let some of those ideas come out into the open and turn into fun for everyone.

Bring Traditions Back

During the past few years the traditions of college were bypassed in favor of a speedy program, so that many people concentrating in study, never really got to know what a college would be like.

Though a favored few may look on their alma mater with love because of the happy hours spent there in cramming for exams, it seems to me that the great majority of college graduates remember with as much justification the spirit of the place and the friendships the spirit fostered. This is commonly called tradition, and it is this tradition that ties all alumni together no matter what their class. For example during the war it was called to the attention of a Colonel, a graduate of some years previous, that he had on his staff a Lieutenant who was a graduate of the class of '42. Hoping to revive some old college spirit, the colonel called the lieutenant to his office and asked about his experiences here at school. "Did you know so and so?" when it developed that they had a few friends in common the conversation fell back to the University day, the horse-play of mayoralty campaigns, the winter carnival, Sadie Hawkins day and many more. These events all rang a chord of response in each mind and soon the conversation was in full swing. It later developed that these two met again after returning to the U. S. and again the common point of interest was University life.

We want such common interests in the years to come. They will appear even more important after these years at school are far behind us. It is up to us, the students, to rediscover and revive the traditions that make this institution something to remember all our lives.

Lt. Pearson Assigned To Navigation School

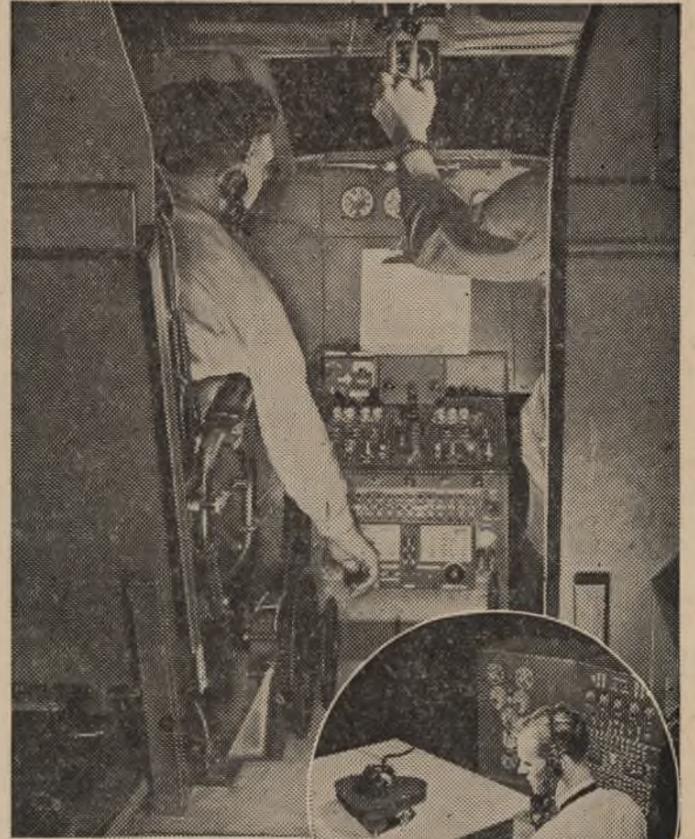

First Lt. John R. Pearson, veteran combat navigator, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar J. Pearson of Exeter, has recently been assigned to Ellington Field in the AAF Training Command.

Lt. Pearson flew as a navigator over Europe, and was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters, and two battle stars on his campaign ribbon.

He is assigned for specialized training in the Central School for Navigation, where he will study the latest techniques in aerial warfare.

Prior to his entrance into the service in October, 1942, Lt. Pearson was a student at the University of New Hampshire.

A FLIGHT THAT NEVER LEAVES THE GROUND

A bomber crew needs training as a team. And now those hazards which are too dangerous for air-borne drill can be duplicated on the ground. This is made possible by an electronic flight trainer perfected by Bell Telephone Laboratories' scientists for the Navy.

At remote controls the instructor follows the "flight," sets up various dangerous conditions, coordinates the crew's reactions.

Tubes glow, switches click much as they do in a telephone exchange, to duplicate such flight perils as icing, fouled fuel lines, "conked" motors. It is the science behind the telephone that here performs another new service to the Nation.

Interhouse Activities Start Next Week

Along with the beginning of studies, comes the beginning of sports and interhouse activities. When you hear interhouse mentioned, you probably think of ping-pong, basketball, bowling, badminton, posture-poise contest, tennis, archery, and lots of competition among girls' houses. Every dorm and sorority has an equal opportunity to win the interhouse competition and the big silver tray. Last year, Pi Lambda Sigma won the tray after a very close race with the other houses, and just nosing out Alpha Xi Delta into second place.

Sports chairmen from each house work with the executive board of WRA in promoting the different activities. First on the list this year is interhouse table tennis which is getting under way very soon. All sports chairmen are asked to be present at a meeting on Thursday night, October 4, at 7 p.m. in room 11, New Hampshire Hall. If your sports chairman cannot be present at the meeting, please send a substitute as this first meeting is most important.

Don't forget that interhouse competition begins soon and everyone can start piling up points for her house by playing table tennis. It's a good start toward winning that silver tray!

Frosh 100 Club Meets; Capt. M. Kidder, Speaker

The second meeting of the Freshman 100 Club was held at the Community House on Sunday, September 30. This club is a product of last spring's retreat and the goal is at least one hundred members.

A buffet supper was served under the chairmanship of Mrs. Clarence Wadleigh and Mrs. Harold Grinnell. There will be two more suppers served in this series.

Spur of the moment fun, in the form of pantomimes and singing was followed by an informal talk by Chaplain Maurice Kidder. A graduate of the university, Captain Kidder was in the European Theater of War for three years and now plans to do graduate work at Yale Divinity School.

Robert Dorman, freshman, held the worship service.

Next Sunday's meeting is to feature a deputation of upperclassmen. Supper will be served at 5:30 p.m. to freshman members. Everyone is welcome and urged to attend the program which begins at 6:30 p.m.

Wildcat Scratchings

Why are Mr. Green's classes the largest of the electives? The obvious question requires no answer. Everyone wants to hear about the howler monkeys, of course. The way those students thirst for knowledge is a thing of beauty and a joy forever. Don't think that present problems are not dealt with. Only today a student re-read her notes to discover that of the human beings, the male is the more aggressive of the species. In fact, according to the notes, he collect females. Of course, there was much more of what the trustees would term worthy material, but I am speaking of material that deals with our real and immediate problems. If what I hear about some of the big operators on campus is true, there must be at least five lads who are getting ready to start a museum.

"Age is wisdom." Proof that this is not an idle quotation by some melon head, I offer a modern example — our worthy Juniors and Seniors. By the time one has been exposed to the culture as long as three or four years one realizes the possibilities of the stacks in the Library. Why, it is sheer delight to take your best girl over to the library and browse through Socrates. Boy, some of those corners are blacker than a villain's intentions.

Many requests have been pouring in asking us to find out if "On The Sunny Side of The Street" numbers among Shorty's repertoire. Shorty's the cheer leader that was picked before he was ripe.

Every thing is systematic now days and the teaching profession has not escaped. At the risk of misquoting I will pass on to those who don't take Math this startling bit of information. Teachers fall into two categories: those who teach like a hoop skirt; they cover everything but don't touch anything important, and those who teach like a modern girl's bathing

Schedules Posted for Co-ed Interclass Hockey

Come rain or shine, the interclass hockey team is underway. Practices are starting this week at Memorial Field. Schedules may be found in every women's dormitory, and rules for participation will be posted. Class managers are as follows: sophomores, Sharon Stepanian; juniors, Doris Buser; seniors, Eloise Braun; and sports leader, Barbara Berger.

The freshmen will elect their manager at their first practice. Everyone interested is urged to come out and have fun. Games will start about the end of next week.

The Interclass Tennis Tournament will also be starting soon. Signup slips will be posted in each dorm. The Women's Recreation Association wishes to emphasize the fact that ability is not a prerequisite to entry. Instead, they would like to have everyone enter for the fun and recreation involved. Let's see a big turnout and make this a big year for sports.

Mask and Dagger Elect Officers for Coming Year

The members of Mask and Dagger, the dramatic society on campus, held their first meeting this fall at the home of Professor and Mrs. J. Donald Batcheller on Monday evening, October 1.

The following officers were elected for the year: President, Anne Morin; vice-president, Mike Coombs; secretary, Nancy Ferguson; treasurer, Steve Aliapoulos; and publicity, Jane Phipps.

suit; they touch everything important but don't cover enough.

Last summer fifty veterans took a six weeks refresher course during which time was spent in Dover under the heading of recreation. Ah, but that was B.C.R. (before the coeds returned). Now Dover is hardly mentioned.

Two Sport Intramural Leagues to be Formed

First Call Issued For Fall Tracksters

Fall track will be the first sport to start off the University's reconversion to peacetime athletics. This was announced by Paul Sweet, university track coach as he issued his first call for candidates.

The team will have no meets as it is primarily intended that the period be used to condition the candidates and to acquaint them with the fundamentals of the sport and also to increase their endurance. With conditioned and experienced trackmen such as this program is expected to produce Coach Sweet can lay the foundation for a relay team this winter and a competitive team next spring.

Coach Sweet pointed out that it is an excellent chance for all those interested to get themselves in condition and that all trackmen should avail themselves of this opportunity because next spring little time will be taken for conditioning.

Practice which started October 1, will be every afternoon from three to five with the exception of Thursday and Saturday afternoons when there will be no practice. Full track equipment will be issued.

Dartmouth Advises Girls on Points in "The Art of Love"

(Editor's note: The following article is reproduced, in part, from the Dartmouth Log. The occasion for it was the Big Green Weekend held September 28 to 30. Although we are not having an influx of girls for one weekend that need to be briefed as to possible entanglements, it did seem appropriate. Now that there are more men on campus to practice "the art of love" the "unsuspecting female of UNH" unused to such potential attention, might take heed to this wisdom.)

The Wolf. . . . This type is quite obvious. The leer, saliva dripping from the mouth, and the general attitude immediately pigeonhole this individual. The approach is really sordid but then, some guys just won't learn. If you've got one of these for a date, get ready for a continual wrestling match and you'd better have a referee around just in case. Some of them haven't seen a woman for three whole days. A modification of the Wolf is the Fox. He's a wolf who sends flowers.

The Tired Approach. . . . He says he's been working hard all semester at Nugget 5. Now is the first time he's had a chance to have any fun and he wants you to help him to make the most of it. Finals are coming up in three weeks and as soon as this weekend's over, he's going to have to hit the books again. Sweetheart, if you fall for this one, you're not as bright as we think you are.

The Misunderstood Approach. . . . Girls just don't understand him. They always think he means something that

Leagues Formed by Twelve Football and Basketball Teams

Football and basketball enthusiasts were given a lift with the announcement that an elaborate intramural system for both sports would be started October 10. A highly competitive league in both sports is expected to result and sports fans on the campus will be given an opportunity to enjoy many spirited games.

Full details of the plans are not yet ready for publishing but a skeleton outline was given today by Demo Demopolous. Each dorm will be represented by one football team (touch) and the two frat houses, Phi Mu Delta and Theta Chi will have a combined team. The action will take place on the gridirons of Lewis Field. A fifteen to twenty game schedule will be drawn up and in all certainty the league champions will be given a suitable award. The football league will get underway October 10.

A larger league will be formed in basketball with East and West having two teams each, Hetzel three and Phi Mu Delta and Theta Chi again combining forces to have one team. All games will take place at the Field House and will be officiated by competent officials. The electric scoreboard will be in operation and the majority of the games will be covered by The New Hampshire. An intramural basketball program was sponsored last year and the champions were Fairchild's third floor. It as hardly expected that that floor will enter a team this year, so there is no defending titlist. The basketball league will start October 15.

Competition is expected to be keen in both sports especially in basketball as many varsity players will be on the various teams. It was also rumored that Hetzel is quite sure of coping both crowns and it will be up to the freshmen in the other dorms to stop them.

Those who wish to play on the various teams are urged to contact the Athletic Program members of their dorm at once. This is very important as it will start the program rolling.

The "Have Another Drink, It's Good For You" Approach. . . . This charming suggestion is about as crude as the Wolf and we've already expressed our opinion on that subject. If you can't hold your liquor, stop after the second drink. Any gal who gets so tight that she doesn't know what she's doing deserves her fate, so don't expect any sympathy from us.

The Modernistic Approach. . . . It goes something like this. You and I are both intelligent people. Let's face the facts." And so on. Here's where you have to have your wits about you. There are several answers to these tactics but they should be kept on the same "intelligent" level. After all, you don't want to insult him or hurt his feelings by answering on a lower plane and politely telling him where he can go.

Library Hours Changed

Miss Thelma Brackett, librarian of the Hamilton Smith Library, wishes to inform all students on campus of the recent change in hours in the library. The library is now open every day from 8:00 a.m. to 10:00 p.m. o'clock. On Saturdays, the library will remain open from 8:00 in the morning to 10:00 in the evening, instead of closing on Saturday nights as was previously done. The reserve book room will be open the same hours. The Art Division will be open from 10:00 to 12:00 a.m. in the morning, 2:00 to 5:00 p.m. in the afternoon, and 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. in the evening.

NOTICE

Motorists would like all students to use the Pettee-Schofield side of Garrison Avenue for walking, and to keep very close to that side of the street.

Some people's sense of humor is not very humorous. What's the idea in stringing ropes across dark paths? Rather dangerous, isn't it?
