EVERY DAY
IS A GREAT DAY
TO BE A WILDCAT
Dear Class of 2014,

As the colorful images in The Granite show, you can enjoy many wonderful memories of your time at UNH, which you now celebrate as proud graduates of New Hampshire’s flagship public research university. Congratulations!

Years, even decades, from now, I trust you will marvel at all you accomplished here academically and personally, and reflect on the rewarding future UNH has made possible for you.

But as these photos suggest, your single most meaningful memories will be of the enduring friendships you forged.

No doubt, many of you will remain close for life. You will share remarkable triumphs, and support each other through challenges as well. Some of you may find yourselves working together, perhaps even as businesses partners. You may devote your lives to public service, pursue further education and maintain your networks of UNH friends throughout your careers—even into retirement.

Among you are those who will remain in New Hampshire to live, work and contribute to your communities. Others will establish new lives in the farthest corners of the world.

No matter where life takes you, UNH will always be your connection to one another. You are now part of an alumni community of more than 120,000 educated, enlightened and caring citizens. I know that you cherish your UNH experience, and I hope that you, too, become active and engaged in supporting your alma mater and future generations of UNH Wildcats.

Finally, I want to thank you for inspiring me, and all of us—faculty, staff, volunteers, friends and partners—in the UNH community. We are so proud of you and grateful for all your hard work, compassion and friendship; and you can always be proud of UNH.

With best wishes,

Mark W. Huddleston

President
Dear Class of 2014,

“Life is a succession of moments, to live each one is to succeed.” - Corita Kent

College is full of moments. The goal of a yearbook is to capture those moments. What I've found as Editor-in-Chief of The Granite Yearbook, however, is that translating 365 days worth of moments into a 304-page publication is next to impossible. Moments are happening constantly on this campus - and that's a truly inspiring thing.

Moments happen when we all come together as a community during Homecoming weekend. Moments happen on snow days when we flock to library hill. Moments happen when we gather at Thompson Hall for a Boston Marathon candlelight vigil.

There are moments that aren't so obvious either. Moments happen when a bed shows up on a dorm lawn on April Fools day, when the sun shines for the first time in April and suddenly the campus comes alive, or when an intramural team finally wins a championship and gets their prized t-shirts.

Every part of college is a moment. Waking up for your first 8 AM is a moment. Not waking up for your last 8 AM is a moment. These are the moments that make up college – and before you know it, those moments have passed by.

We all are fortunate to have found ourselves at the University of New Hampshire. The campus, staff, professors, coaches, mentors, and advisors have all provided an environment that fosters the moments you all have experienced the past four years. In this environment there was never a day, hour, or minute when there wasn’t something to do, somewhere to go, or opportunities to seek out.

Fortunately, that's a lot like life. The moments we experience in college are just a part of a journey. I hope that you will remember all the moments that you have experienced at the University of New Hampshire, and use them as inspiration to continue to seek out opportunities to learn and grow.

Eventually you might find that the moments you have had on this campus start to fade – and that's okay. When that time comes I hope that you turn to your bookshelf, flip through The Granite Yearbook, and re-live all those incredible moments.

Congratulations and best of luck with your future! Go create new moments.

Sincerely,

Catey McCann
Editor-in-Chief
Campus Life
"Creating the Campus Life section was so much fun because I got the chance to see what everyone who lived on campus did in their down time. You get to see so many different activities and it was great."

Sports
"Working as the Sports Editor of The Granite Yearbook this year gave me an inside look at the heart of UNH's athletic programs. The yearbook was a team I was proud to be part of. I was able to see all the different sports and all of the team's dedication and passion. It allowed me to see the true meaning of being a UNH wildcat."

Events
"Being able to showcase what UNH has to offer to the community beyond the academic field was the best part of being the Events Editor."

Greek Life
"As a sister of Alpha Phi and Greek Life editor for The Granite Yearbook, I have seen Greek Life continue to grow throughout UNH! It has brought the community together as a whole in various ways, and has also raised large amounts of money for many charities. I look forward to seeing the pictures of events that each sorority and fraternity has created each year!"

Advertising Manager/Parent Advertisements
"Working with The Granite staff was such a great experience - the business and advertising portion has definitely been worth all the hard work and collaboration."

Spring Photo Editor
"Instead of having a personal snapshot of UNH, being the Photo Editor allowed me to see UNH from many diverse angles."

Food Justice

Students discussed food justice, hunger, and insecurity and how it relates to issues of race, economic inequality, and social justice in this MLK series event.

When did you first make connections with food injustice?

Has food injustice influenced your life?

How do we consider the issues and put things in perspective as we eat?

Has food justice influenced your goals for the future?

How do you take what you learn here on campus to family and friends beyond UNH?

How can we expand our message?
Commencement Fair

Fusion Student Ministries seeks to provide opportunity and support for students to develop meaningful, benevolent faith, as well as to form community and share life in service with others.

National Slavic Honor Society

The purpose of this organization shall be to promote UNH's Russian program on campus and throughout the surrounding area. Dobro Slovo members shall volunteer their time and effort to give back to the community by means of education and other forms.
Judo Club

Judo is a Japanese martial art mainly focused on using your opponents own momentum to defeat them. Its tenets are "Maximum Efficiency with Minimum Effort" and "Mutual Benefit and Welfare." It is a great way to improve one's mind and body.

Student Association of Geographers

The Student Association of Geographers nurtures a community of student geographers within UNH by providing a place for interaction and active outreach to the larger geography community. They also engage and encourage students in an ongoing conversation of their diverse field.

CONGRATULATIONS ANDREW NTAPALIS!

We have watched you grow from the remarkably inquisitive and creative child, fascinated with the world around you and develop into a virtuous young man.

As you graduate summa cum laude, with memberships in Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Alpha Theta, Golden Key International, and UNH Epee Fencing. Your parents couldn’t be prouder of your achievements, but most importantly, of you as an individual.

Congratulations Andrew, for your dedication to hard work and we wish you a lifetime of success and happiness. May God always bless you and keep you well son!

We love you!
